Situation Clearly Stated.

"This question is being put up squarely to the people of Richmond," he said, in opening his remarks. "We have got to the point where we must do something. The present conditions at the building now occupied are utterly inadequate, and it would be absolutely better to have nothing and permit some other organization to take over the work of the Y. M. C. A. than to continue to use the present structure, which stands as a reproach to the community."

"We want carnest and whole-souled."

proach to the community."

"We want earnest and whole-souled effort. This is not a new question. It was agitated about two years ago, and was brought to the attention of those who were most interested in association work. The necessity for a new building was felt so much at that time that when opportunity was offered to obtain a desirable site at the northwest corner of Grace and Seventh Streets, it was taken advantage of, and was purchased for a little less than $16,000. So, since March of 1905, that property has been held for ttle less than $16,000. So, since March f 1905, that property has been held for it Young Men's Christian Association, the people of Richmond want it as a te for a new building, we are ready to for a concrete proposition. We have a te, we must go somewhere, and it is by us to say whether we will take adantage of the splendid opportunity aforded.

"I want to relieve your minus right here and let you know that you are not going to be asked for a cent at this meeting. We want to place the facts before you and see if there is enough combustible material in Richmond to create a little warmth. We want to find out if there are enough men in Richmond to do lt."

Mr. Bryan's Ringing Call.

Mr. Bryan's Ringing Call.

After referring to the noble and ignoble qualities of conservatism, which has its worst feature in parsimony, Mr. Bryan gave some figures tabulated by a friend to show how the business men of Richmond had prospered since the old structure was erected in 1885, and to prove the necessity of having the Y. M. C. A. keep pace with this advancement. These figures showed a real estate valuation in Richmond of $30,055,000 in 1855 and a present valuation of $15,000,000 in 1855 and a present valuation of $15,000,000; in come aggregating $1,000,000 in 1855,and a total of about $40,000,000; in the city was indicated by the increase of values of property on Main Street of about eighty per cent, and of over 100 per cent, on Broad Street.

"These figures show that somebody has got money," said Mr. Bryan, "and plenty of it. No excuses can be taken from those who are able to give. We can have the site and a suitable building for $200,000, the site into cast about $40,000 and the building about $160,000. The site we need will be 121 by 167 feet. We can no more avoid moral responsibility than we can avoid eating or putting on our ciothes to keep our bodies in a healthy

This is the best investment that you can can possibly make. It is sickening to think of a fallure, and I would not entertain such a thought."

Mr. S. K. McKee, general secretary of the Richmond association, was then asked to present the conditions as they now are at the building. The details given by him make up one of the very best arguihim make up one of the very best argu ments why the new building suous te-put up at once. He showed how the build-ing, one of the oldest association build-ings in the country, was not adapted to sconomical work; that it was entirely inadequate to present needs, and that it will soon require extensive and costly

President Hawkins Speaks.

Mr. O. A. Hawkins, president of the Richmond association, was called upon for a few remarks. He said in part:

"I have visited the association when there were as many as 90 boys of the Bible study class in attendance, and could see only too clearly that they had not the advantages and privileges to which they were entitled.

"We have had to turn away boys who wanted to become members. Others wanted to become members. Others would become members if we had even

Many of the members receive very small wages, and some of them have their fees paid by employers or others. There is not an association in the country that maintains itself."

Mr. N. D. Sills, chairman of the young business men's committee, referred to the drawbacks of the gymmsium, which is was even unsantary at times, especially when there were their or forty members in it taking exercise.

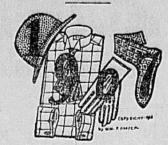

Business men dropped out on account of the lack of conveniences, and the membership will not increase as it would if the proper advantages were provided.

Mr. Ward Talks of Plan.

Mr. Charles S. Ward, who will direct ne campaign, received a cordial recep-on when he was asked to explain his tion when he was asked to explain his plan. He used the success in Baltimore to show what could be done here with the same plan, incidentally remarking that the work ought to the easier with such an unequalled chairman and such a hustler as the young men had. Names of citizens who can afford to give to the association will be selected, and will be on hand at the next meeting, when they will be given to the members of the citizens' committee, who will pick out men they know for the purpose of soliciting. It is not a haphazard plan, but—is so systematized that efforts are made to have a business man approached only by one solicitor. Mr Ward anticipated that the young men would raise about $50,000 of this amount.

Mayor McCarthy was present and de livered a few stirring remarks. He said that he thought that the increased values moral atmosphere created by the churches

Other Speakers.

Other Speakers.

Mr. John S. Munce spoke on the need of combining integrity and ability, and said that the Y. M. C. A was doing more to accomplish this condition than any other organization. It ought to have the support of every one in the community. He referred to a gentleman who said that the heads of corporations wished a high standard of character in their men, but were not willing always to support out were not willing always to support character-building institutions.

Mr. S. W. Travers, who was president of the local association for six years, spoke briefly, but pointedly, about the present conditions and the necessity for a new building.

"Short, sharp and decisive; a glorious victory or a sudden death," was the way in which Mr. Bryan described the way in which Mr. Bryan described the way in which the campaign is to be conducted. The meeting was brought to a close when the unanimous vote was taken to press the matter to a most vigorous and successful conclusion.

An official of the International Young Men's Christian Association, who has been visiting in Richmond for some days, and who is thoroughly familiar with conditions in the leading Young Men's Christian Association buildings in all parts of the country, and who has spent some time in going over the Richmond building and equipment, gave out the following interview with regard to local conditions yesterday:
"The modest three-story building that tands at the corner of Main and Sixth atisfy the requirements of a member t had a five-story building, with nearly twice the floor space of the Richmond structure. The Baltimore Association has twice the floor space of the Richmond structure. The Baltimore Association has a gymnasium twice the size of the one here, in addition to handball courts, large baths, storage rooms, etc., and yet was crowded. In such a case, the conditions here, with less than half the room and mearly as large a membership, can be better imagined than described.

Present Gymnasium Dangerous. The gymnasium in use is not only small, but is really dangerous. Four large pillars, used as supports in the construction of the building, obstruct free play on the floor of the gymnasium, and make basketball and other similar games both dangerous and disagreeable. The track for running in the gallery can be called a running large of the construction. agreeable. The track for running in the gallery can be called a running track only in name. The private room of Mr. W. Y. Reithard, physical director, where new members of the gymnasium classes undergo examination as to their physical fitness for gymnasium work, is anything but inviting, and affords Mr. Reithard only about enough space to change his mind. He has not done that, however, concerning the necessity for new gymnasium equipment for the association.

The interior of the gymnasium, says Mr. Reithard, is so constructed that there is practically no means of ventilating, as all of the windows are above the track in the gallery. After the four posts are taken into consideration, there is little room left for the two-score of boys who throng the floor at one time.

Crowded Everywhere.

It would require an expert mathemati-cian to figure out the extreme possibilities of the present building and provide for all requirements. Practically every room in
